3-Point Slide

1

Create points of 3 or replace squares on this template with photos. Look sleek, while having a functional layout.

2

Colors can always be changed on this template to match the color scheme based on the brand guide hex code colors.

3

PIC + MUCH TEXT

PIC + MUCH TEXT

- Maybe you want bullet points on a slide such as this.
- I would recommend keeping them to the preset coordinations of the color scheme—like how this one is inspired by an aspen forest
- Otherwise, aim to make your bullet point match your selected photo (within the selection of colors from the brand guidelines).

PIC + TEXT

Solution #/Title

- A more bare-bones format that gives more greater space for text to contextualize an image or infographic.

LIST BARS

As an alternative to bullet points, you can use a template that creates a visual list like this one.

Each of these blocks that has the list on them is copy + paste-able, so that you can add or delete the light blue list bars as you need.

This is a particularly conducive format to when you want to make 3 points with greater emphasis than with just a bullet point list.

As an alternative to bullet points, you can use a template that creates a visual list like this one.

Each of these blocks that has the list on them is copy + paste-able, so that you can add or delete the light blue list bars as you need.

You could always replace the solid background with a textured photo.

Each of these blocks that has the list on them is copy + paste-able, so that you can add or delete the light blue list bars as you need.

You could always replace the solid background with a photo. As such, these bars can be shrunk horizontally, so that there is less bar and more room for photo.

COMPARISON

- Argue your point here with or without a bullet point. This could even be an image comparison. Think of these boxes as frames for any kind of content.
